Making Human Geography

Guilford Publishers

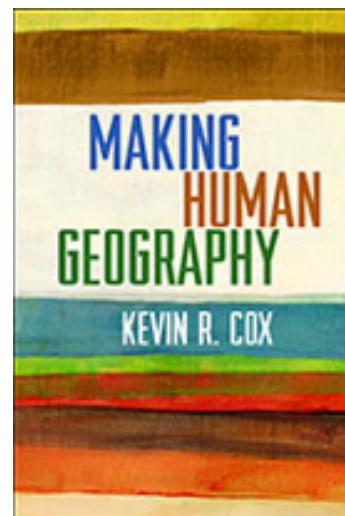

Kevin R. Cox

Professor, Department of Geography
The Ohio State University

Dr. Kevin R. Cox's new book, Making Human Geography, is an interpretive and critical account of how human geography made itself over the last fifty years or so: how and the circumstances under which it discovered theory and method and became the exciting field that it is today. During this book forum Dr. Cox plans to give an account of the background to the book and its major themes and conclusions followed by a question and answer period.
